

Team Reflection - Sprint 2

Scrum master: Pauline

Product owner: Atosa

The team has been doing well this last week, even though one group member was unable to attend this week due to illness. This affected the scrum board flow because we had fewer resources than expected, this left one card behind which will be dealt with in the next sprint.

The teamwork is of good quality and it feels like every member has the confidence to expose their flaws and ask for help when they are stuck. This is a quality that helps the work flow in a positive manner because one never slows down the work.

This week we also had a bigger number of cards planned for the sprint. Last week the cards were fewer than the number of group members, resulting in that not everyone had something specific to do. This week however, everyone had responsibility over a user story planned for the sprint. The group has been more productive than last week, and as of now we have been able to test the cards we have implemented, making sure the website can run on different operating systems.

We feel positive about this way of working. Instead of working incoherently towards a big deadline, we as a group can see constant success and get the shared feeling that we are working continuously towards the end goal.

Our plans for the next sprint is to work more with the backend and connect the website more to the database.

Below you can see the different user stories we implemented during this sprint in prioritized order.

Backlog

- As a user I want to be able to track my habits by choosing what buttons that are visible, so that I can track the habits that are most important to me.
- As a user I want to receive information about what my habits do, so that I stay motivated in the course of growing good habits.
- As a user I want to get a visual response so that I know that I have pressed the button.
- + Add a card

Sprint Backlog

- 003 As a user I want a structure on the site so that it is more pleasing to look at. (EA)
- 004 As a user I want a descriptive button so that I know what habit it represents by looking at it. (KH)
- 005 As a product owner, I want a unique and eye-catching logo that reflects the values and identity of my brand in order to establish a strong visual presence and attract potential customers. (PB)
- 006 As a user I want more pages to access than just the homepage so that the site is more structured and variated. (AD)
- 007 As a user I want a menu that shows me the different parts of the site so that it is easy to navigate. (U)
